REDEFINING BERO THROUGH TRANSMEDIA STORYTELLING!

How can Bero leverage transmedia storytelling, Tom Holland's personal branding, and lifestyle trends in North America in 2025 to deepen the brand experience?

A hand is pouring beer from a can into a glass. In the background, there are other cans and glasses. The cans are labeled 'BERO', 'NOON WHEAT', and 'KINGSTON GOLDEN PILS'. The glasses are filled with beer and have a thick head of foam. The background is a solid green color.

INTENDED AUDIENCES

We have identified 4 audience segments based on:

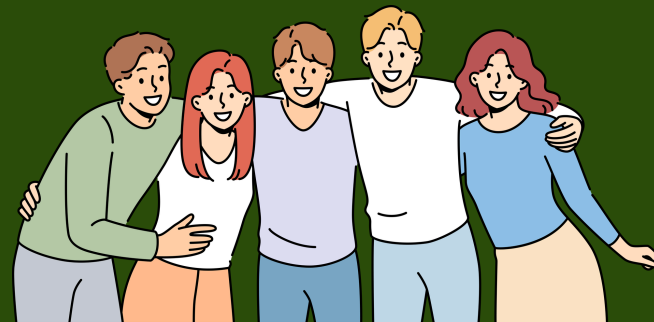

- emotional connection
- wellness trends
- engagement

GenZ (18–28 y/o)

(Statista, 2023)

Millennials (25–40 y/o)

(Atrium Health, 2024)

Health-conscious individuals

(Statista, 2024b)

Tom Holland fans

(Chen et al., 2021; Granitz & Forman, 2015)

CURRENT STRATEGIES

- Alignment with Holland's Personal Story (King, 2025)
 - Consistent narrative, but does not extend across multiple platforms
- Social Media Presence
 - Lack of unique tailored content for each medium
- Tapping into Trends: health and wellness
 - How can this be taken to the next level?

(Hong et al., 2021)

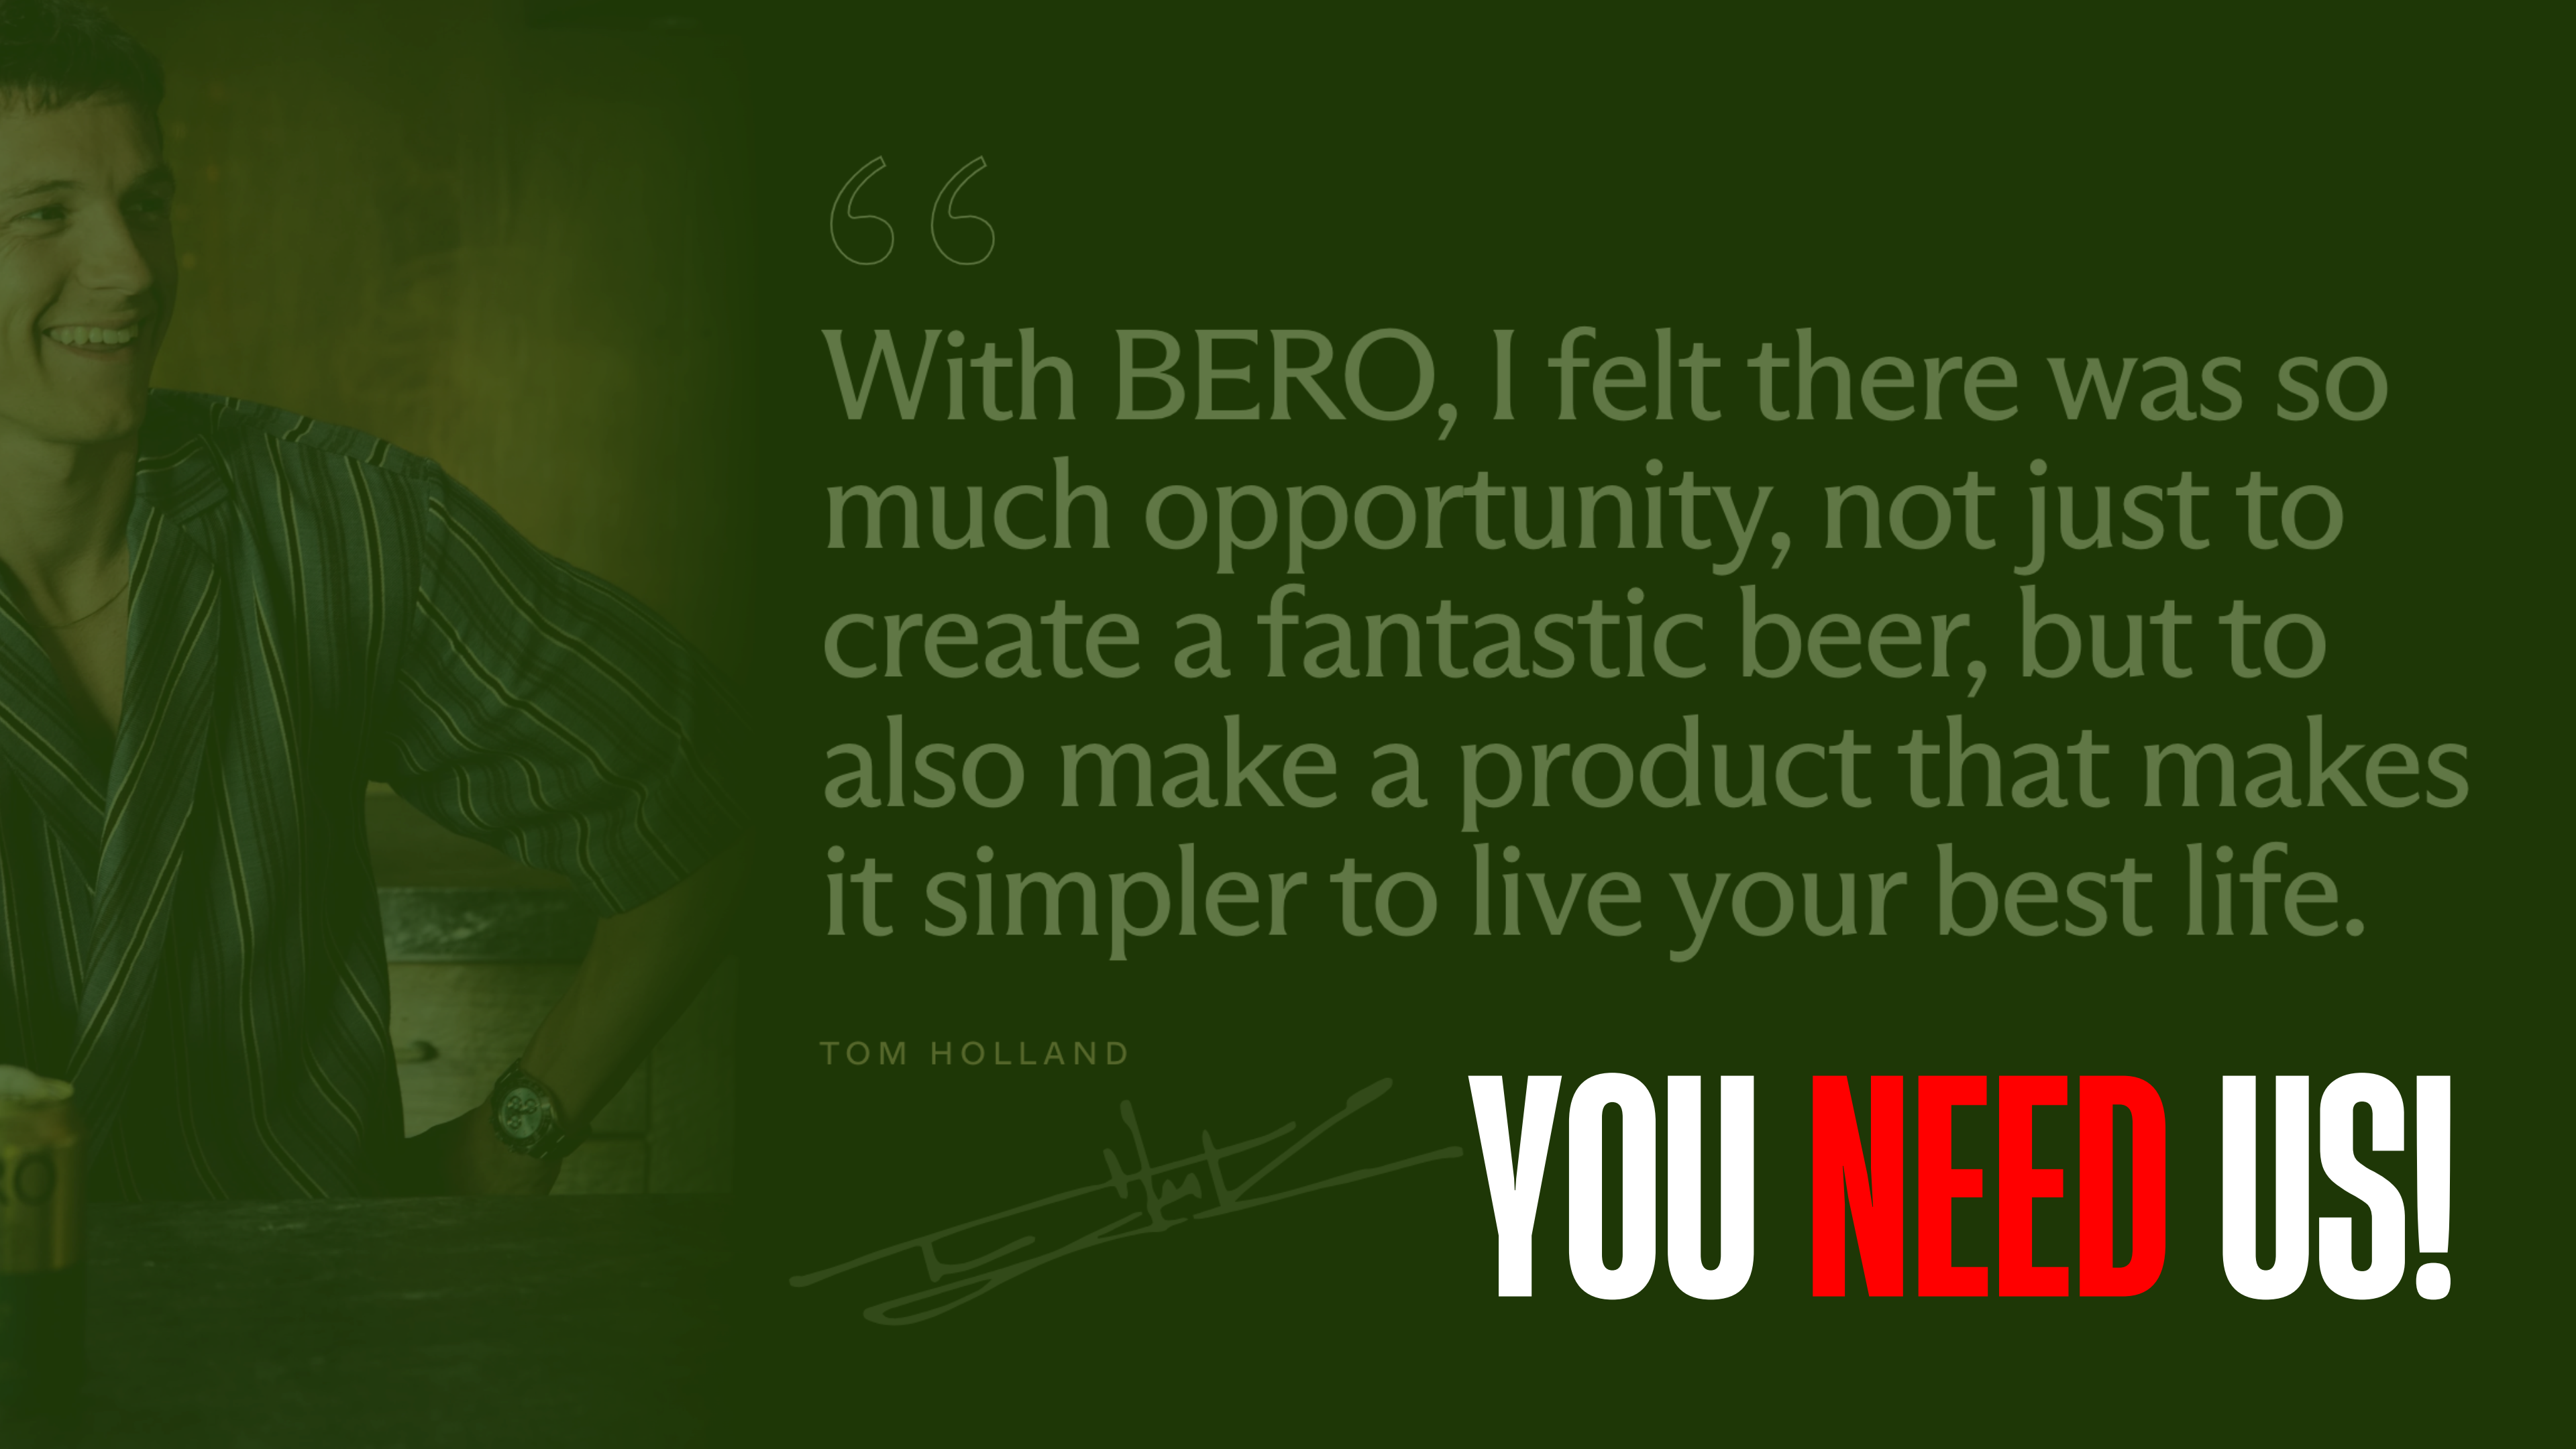

WEAKNESSES

Lack of strong transmedia storytelling

- Brand awareness
- Collaborative marketing
- Consumer-driven storytelling / consumer involvement

(Hong et al., 2021)

With BERO, I felt there was so much opportunity, not just to create a fantastic beer, but to also make a product that makes it simpler to live your best life.

TOM HOLLAND
